HOW IT WAS DONE IN 1869

THEODORE MILLER DID HIS "COURTIN'" HORSEBACK.

MARRIED 58 YEARS

Couple Spend Day Quietly at Home—Plan "Celebration" on Sixtieth Anniversary.

"Horseback is the way to do courtin', you can ride close and its just as good as a horse and buggy any day," declares Theodore Miller, 410 West Seventh street. And Mr. Miller ought to know, because when he courted it lasted—he and Mrs. Miller have been married fifty-eight years today.

The Miller courtin' was done before horse and buggy days began, when the young people all rode horseback. They were married in 1869.

"I built a new house for her out of walnut, burr oak and white oak, three and a half miles east of Bolckow, I put her there and kept her there until 20 years ago when we moved to Maryville," Mr. Miller declared smiling at his wife.

"Mr. Miller meant business when he courted me, he was batching and wanted someone to cook for him," Mrs. Miller parried.

He's A Model Husband.

"Now let me tell you something," declared the husband," she was just as anxious as I was and we were both pretty anxious."

Along with being the father of eleven children, nine of whom are living, Mr. Miller has another claim to distinction—he has never left his wife alone one night in fifty-eight years. If there were others in the house and he left to be gone twenty minutes he returned in twenty minutes! No wonder we sigh for the good old days!

And, as if that weren't enough, Mr. Miller has never been late to a meal!

The good old days had another advantage. When Mr. and Mrs. Miller were married, it was not necessary to get a marriage license as it is today. One might procure a blank at the recorder's office and the minister filled it out. After the wedding, the paper was filed at the court house. However, it was shortly after this date that a license before marriage became necessary by law.

And they weren't so slow back in 1869 either. Why, the Miller courtin' was done in six or eight months! Of course they had known each other, but never really were "serious" until a short time before the wedding.

"Of course I built the house before we were married. In those days when people said they'd do a thing is was as good as a bond. They did it. And we trusted each other," the husband declared.

Mrs. Miller says she has never had the wedding certificate framed. "But its still in the trunk. I always meant to have it done."

Went West As Freighter.

Mr. Miller was born in Columbia, Kentucky, in 1844 and in 1863 he went west at a "freighter." He took provisions to the various points west of the Missouri for the Government. In those days the railroad did not run west of the Missouri. He helped haul the provisions across country in ox drawn wagon. He freighted to Nebraska City, Fort Maramee, Denver and entire summer to drive to Salt Lake event to Salt Lake City. It took the City and return. Two trips to Denver could be made during the summer.

Two or three years ago a reporter for the Democrat-Forum got a "story" from Mr. Miller concerning his days in the West. He told the reporter that he was a "Bull whacker" meaning that he drove the ox wagons. The reporter printed the story stating that Mr. Miller was a "Bushwhacher." And in telling of it Mr. Miller said, "Maybe you don't know it, but a bushwhacker is pretty low. He shoots at people from the brush where they can't defend themselves."

"It made me so mad when they said a thing like that about Mr. Miller, of course he wasn't a bushwhacker," Mrs. Miller declared firmly.

When Mr. and Mrs. Miller was married they possessed $135 in money. From a start of $135 they reared ten of their eleven children, own a one hundred and sixty acre farm and are comfortably fixed. The middle of last December they moved into a fine new home at 410 West Seventh street.

"People said we were too old to

SCHOOL BONDS OF $4,000 PAID

INDEBTEDNESS OF MARYVILLE DISTRICT NOW $51,000.

LOCKERS NOW ASKED

Students of High School Petition for Improvement—Treasurer Submits Report.

Bonds amounting to $4,000 were ordered paid together with interest at a meeting of the school board held Wednesday night. With the payment of these bonds, the total bonded indebtedness of the school district is $51,000, out of an original issue of $75,000 voted in 1920.

The report of the treasurer of the school district gives the balance in the general fund at $42,105.72, a free text book fund of $1,631.73, Washington bond sinking fund of $5,030.19, and Washington bond interest fund of $4,445.56.

A petition of the Hi-Y Club, signed by more than 300 students at the high school, asking lockers for the students, was received and a committee composed of L. E. Ziegler, superintendent, and Fred French, was appointed to investigate the matter and report.

The board ordered that the scholarship to the rural school honor graduate of the county be continued and restricted to the honor graduate alone.

The monthly salaries of the teachers were allowed. L. E. Ziegler was granted his expenses to attend the meeting of the National Education Association at Dallas, Texas.

CAR OWNERS ARE WARNED

SHOULD GET LICENSES SOON, PROSECUTOR SAYS.

AWAITS STATE ACTION

Motorists who have not bought state licenses for their automobiles and trucks for 1927 today were reminded by George Pat Wright, prosecuting attorney that the time is not far off when prosecution will result from failure of negligent motor car owners to provide licenses for their motor vehicles.

Last year there were 6,278 pairs of plates issued at the local license bureau in the Chamber of Commerce room and up to today only 2,563 had been sold, D. A. Caldwell, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, in charge of the state automobile license business for this district, said today. Yesterday, he said, 162 licenses were issued.

Mr. Wright said that last year he set March 7 as the last day under which motorists could operate their motor cars without licenses. However, he said, he was holding off naming the day this year, awaiting action of the state legislature. Mr. Wright said he was informed there was some measure before the State Assembly, definitely designating a time by which automobile owners must procure the license plates.

He said he was writing to Senator M. E. Ford of Nodaway County today regarding this measure, and if it has a chance of passing would undoubtedly make the date conform in Nodaway County this year to the time named in the measure pending in the legislature.

Mr. Wright said, however, that motorists would not be given much more grace and he would soon set a date, after which time the officials would be notified to prosecute those lax in getting 1927 automobile permits.

Those operating motor vehicles now, or even after the first of February, without licenses are violating the law, he said.

But due to the fact that licenses are not put on sale until February 1, and the physical impossibility of everybody obtaining the permits from the designated places on the first day of February, the prosecutors in the various counties of the state set a time, a month or so after February 1, before which the automobile and truck owners are expected to obtain licenses.

Although the measure which he has been informed is pending in the legislature would not be effective this year, even if passed, he said it would be his plan to make the date this year the same as provided in the measure.

Trains Are Delayed by Freight Wreck

Fourteen Cars of Stock, Meat and Merchandise Go in Ditch Near Gallatin at Noon Yesterday.

Wabash passenger train No. 11, due here at 4:05 o'clock this morning, was over five hours late on account of a freight wreck near Gallatin yesterday noon. Through trains on this road had to be routed over the Burlington at Darlington to St. Joseph and then over the Rock Island to Gallatin. The wreck was cleared up and the track was open at 10:30 this morning, according to information here.

Fourteen cars of stock, meat, metal and merchandise were piled up in the ditch. The cars were a part of fast freight No. 94. The cause of the wreck has not been definitely determined. Both the Moberly and Stanberry wreckers and their crews were rushed to Gallatin soon after the accident. About fifteen car lengths of track were torn up in the crash when one car hurdled the track and thirteen others followed.

The damage to freight shipments in the wrecked cars will amount to several thousand dollars, it was estimated.

Mrs. Beulah Graham, of Oakland, who claims the honor of being the youngest grandmother admits she is 29 and has a grandson 4 months old.

Discovery of California's "girl grandmothers" followed publication of a news dispatch from Atlanta, Ga., in which Mrs. Bert Wade, 32, was hailed as the youngest grandmother. Her daughter, Mrs. Roy Stegall, 16, recently gave birth to a son.

STAR'S NAME IN DEATH ACT

DIRECTOR KILLS SELF

Los Angeles, Feb. 25.—The name of Renee Adoree, piquant French star of the films today appeared under the mystery surrounding the suicide of Lynn F. Reynolds, her director.

Reynolds died in the emergency hospital this morning after shooting himself last night after a family quarrel, in which, investigators said, his wife objected to his alleged friendship with Miss Adoree.

Los Angeles, Feb. 25.—Lynn F. Reynolds, well known picture director, died here today from a bullet wound in his brain, self inflicted, according to police.

Reynolds had been suffering from despondency brought on after he had been marooned for several days in the mountains by a snow storm.

The director died in the receiving hospital, never having regained consciousness since late last night, when he fired a shot into his head following a quarrel in the midst of a dinner party in his home.

According to the story told by Mrs. Reynolds, formerly Kathleen O'Connor, former screen actress and noted woman golfer, her husband knocked her to the floor and held their guests at bay during a struggle in which they attempted to frustrate the act.

ARMY MULE NOW CLEANED BY VACUUM

Grooming by Hand Is Succeeded by More Modern Method—Animals Like It.

New York, Feb. 25.—The American army mule is being glorified by vacuum cleaner—and likes it.

Use of vacuum cleaners in place of grooming by hand has been voted an unqualified success by commanders of horse and mule units of the army, according to a survey published in the current number of the Field Artillery Journal.

The machines do a more thorough job and complete the work in one-fifth of the time required by hand method, the survey showed. On an average of a gallon of dirt was removed from every dozen animals and the coat took on a finer gloss.

So effective were the vacuum cleaners in getting at the root of the dirt that army mules and horses in many posts were permitted to go through the winter months without their periodic clipping.

Nervousness disappeared after one application of the new machine and horses submitted quietly to its use. It was reported that mules seemed to experience sensations of pleasure from the massage effect of the appliance. In fact, one report told of a notorious mule which the soldiers dreaded to groom. Its truculence vanished at the initial touch and now the animal visibly leans against the suction brush with much contentment.

Mrs. Ben Jones of Parnell went to Kansas City this morning.

FARM RELIEF DIES BY VETO

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE REFUSES TO GIVE HIS SIGNATURE.

SENDS LONG MESSAGE

McNary-Haugen Measure Is Declared Unconstitutional And Otherwise Unsatisfactory.

Iowans Start Lowden Boom.

Des Moines, Feb. 25.—Following bitter denunciation of President Coolidge's veto of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill on the floor of the Iowa legislature today, a spontaneous move was started to nominate Frank C. Lowden as Republican presidential candidate in 1928.

Petitions for Lowden were circulated in both houses. The signers averred Lowden was the "only potential candidate who represented the true interests of agriculture."

The President, defying threats of farm leaders of dire political reprisals, refused to affix his signature to the agriculture aid measure which he and members of his cabinet have consistently opposed.

Passage of the bill by Congress placed Mr. Coolidge in the difficult position of having to offend one of two powerful groups— the farmers of the West or the financial interests of the East. The latter practically united in opposition to the measure.

The President said pressure for the bill rises primarily from sympathy for the farmer's distress brought about by after-war speculation and collapse.

While conceding the huge amount of public opinion favoring the measure, the President expressed belief that the final judgment of American farmers would oppose the McNary-Haugen bill.

"What the farmers want and the American people as a whole will approve is legislation which will not substitute governmental bureaucracy for individual and cooperative initiative, but will facilitate the constructive efforts of the farmers themselves in their own self-government organizations," the President said.

The President in a lengthy veto message, held that the act was unconstitutional and attached an opinion of the Attorney-General to this effect.

"Many reasons exist why the McNary-Haugen bill ought not to be approved, but it is impossible to state them without writing a book," the message said. "The most decisive one is that it is not constitutional."

Washington, Feb. 25.—President Coolidge's veto of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill definitely kills that measure and no attempt will be made to pass it over his veto.

Farm bloc leaders of Congress privately admitted defeat as soon as the President's message of veto came to the Senate.

The political reaction to the veto was strong. Farm bloc members contended Mr. Coolidge had forfeited his chance for the Presidency or "surrendered to the industrial east so he can run again."

Opponents of the measure said he took the only course open to him.

Baptist Church to Have Usual Services

Banks involved in the crash were the Federal Trust Co., the Kansas City Terminal Trust Co. and the Waldo State Bank.

Ford Votes Against Convention System

Senate Sends Act to Engrossment—Provides for Either Primary or Old-Time Nominating Method.

Jefferson City, Feb. 25.—The Kinney bill making it optional whether candidates for state offices and the supreme and appellate courts shall be nominated at a primary election or under a convention system, was sent to engrossment by the senate this afternoon.

By an original introduction by Senator Michael Kinney of St. Louis, the bill provided that nominations for all offices, state and county, except governor, United States senator, representative in Congress and state superintendent of public schools, should be nominated by convention.

The bill was supported almost solidly by the Democratic majority in the Senate and by several Republicans, including Senator James S. Summers of Kansas City. Senator M. E. Ford of Maryville voted against the bill. The vote was eighteen for engrossment and eleven opposed.

Irish Setters Seen as Best Racing Dogs

Ashton, Idaho, Feb. 25.—Irish setters bid fair to eliminate malamutes and Canadian huskies from dog racing veteran mushers here predict.

The collective statement followed winning of the American dog derby by Earl Kimball, Cascade, Idaho, driving a team of seven perfectly matched, pure bred Irish bird dogs. Kimball nosed out Tud Kent, ex-champion, by less than two minutes. Kent drove a team of cross-bred Llewellyn and Irish setters.

Kimball's time for the 25 miles was 1:57:16.

Idaho dogmen said they would send at least one team of the Irish setters either to the Pas derby or the Wolfeboro race next year.

SHOALS BILL SIDETRACKED

SENATE SENDS POWER BID BACK TO COMMITTEE.

A FREE-FOR-ALL NOW

Congress Is Split Into Jealous Groups Jockeying for Vote on Pet Measures.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Upon motion of Chairman McNary of the Senate agriculture committee, the senate today recommitted the Associated Power Co. bid for the government's power project at Muscle Shoals.

By a record vote, the measure was sent to the agriculture committee, which will prevent further consideration of it at this session of Congress.

The vote was 39 to 45.

Senate Now in Free-for-All.

Washington, Feb. 25.—A half a dozen actual and incipient filibusters, swirling in and around the dramatic fight over Boulder Dam legislation, today threw the Senate into a fighting snarling division of groups scrambling for action on pet measures before adjournment next Friday.

With but one week to go before conclusion of the short session, the legislative situation has developed into a free-for-all, with almost anything likely to eventuate.

The Boulder Dam bill is apparently safe until 1 p. m. tomorrow, when the Senate will vote on a cloture motion proposing limitation of debate to break the filibuster which has held that measure inert for seven successive days.

But senators with frayed nerves and irritated tempers are constantly maneuvering for positions upon the public building bill, the alien property bill, prohibition measures and several resolutions which may or may not get through before final adjournment.

Result of Vote in Doubt.

The situation of the Johnson-Swing bill, for construction of a $125,000,000 power and flood control dam at Boulder, Canyon, in the Colorada river, is by no means pleasing to its proponents. A check-up by the United Press indicated that half the Senate is in doubt as to how it will vote on the cloture motion tomorrow and probably will not decide until it sees what parliamentary situation develops at the moment.

The drys are working eagerly to sandwich in the Andrews prohibition reorganization bill, but Senator Edwards, Democrat, New Jersey, wet, has a speech which he conservatively estimates will last "two or three days."

Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, says he will take the first opportunity to force the alien property bill, although there is considerable objection to it in several quarters.

Further many staunch Republicans are so strenuously opposed to the Reed resolution for continuing the life of the elections investigating committee and the Norris resolution for an investigation of the so-called "southern patronage scandal" that plenty of debate and perhaps a few filibusters may be expected when these measures are considered.

DECENCY PAYS BETTER.

It might be supposed that the big men of the theatrical business would see the need of moral housecleaning, for business if not for moral reasons.

Broadway, New York, which produces the shows and sets the theatrical standards for America, has begun deluging the country with indecency. It is not so bad as European drama, but it is too bad for American, and there are signs everywhere that the American people will not stand for it. The action of the authorities in New York City is merely spectacular evidence of what is likely to become a national revolt, destined to bring American drama back to the decency and decorum that characterize normal American life.

If the playwrights and producers continue along their recent course, they will surely lose their decent patrons. That has begun already. If they minister only to the indecent, they sink, deeper and deeper in the mire and must end in self-disgust and financial failure. Theatrical prosperity in the past has been gained by appealing to the whole public—by playing for the average man and woman, who are neither puritanic nor shameless, but who demand in their entertainment a higher degree of cleanness and respectability than any other country in the world.

The decent people of this country always put the indecent people out of business when it comes to a show-down.

The theaters may be decent from compulsion or from choice. If they are wise, they will choose the way of decency—if not because it is decent, then because it is the only way to continuous prosperity.

Nothing rotten ever prospers in the long run. Economic laws, at bottom, are moral laws. Business is based on ethics. So is art, even if the artists can see it.

The new Spring Clothes by

Society Brand

The College Style for Spring
Not only for college men—but for all who like the smartness of college styles. Observe the straight, full effect of the jacket; the high coin lapels; the widely spaced buttons.

A Great 3-Button Style
Three button suits will be more popular this Spring than at any time in years. This is the correct cut:—Fairly broad shoulders, a slight waist suppression, coin lapels.

Here, and ready for your inspection! It's always an event—this first look at the styles for Spring—but this year it seems to be twice the event of other seasons.

For one thing, the styles themselves are more interesting than at any time in years. There are new ideas—new style points that are worth watching. There are new fabric ideas too—all interesting.

Society Brand have outdone themselves in the fine distinction they have given to these new models. And in the richness of their exclusive fabrics; Bristol Stripes and Piping Rocks for suits; Beverly Tweeds for topcoats.

All in all, it will be worth your while to look over the new display—when you do, you'll say that for real variety, for correct styles, for value, there's nothing to equal it anywhere.

The New 2-Button
All young men who lean toward the conservative in clothes will like this model. Broad shouldered, with plenty of chest; a trim waist, coin lapels.

Distinctly for Young Men
It's the style for the broad shouldered young man of today. Notice the tapering effect from the shoulders to the narrow hips. Good looking—and altogether correct.

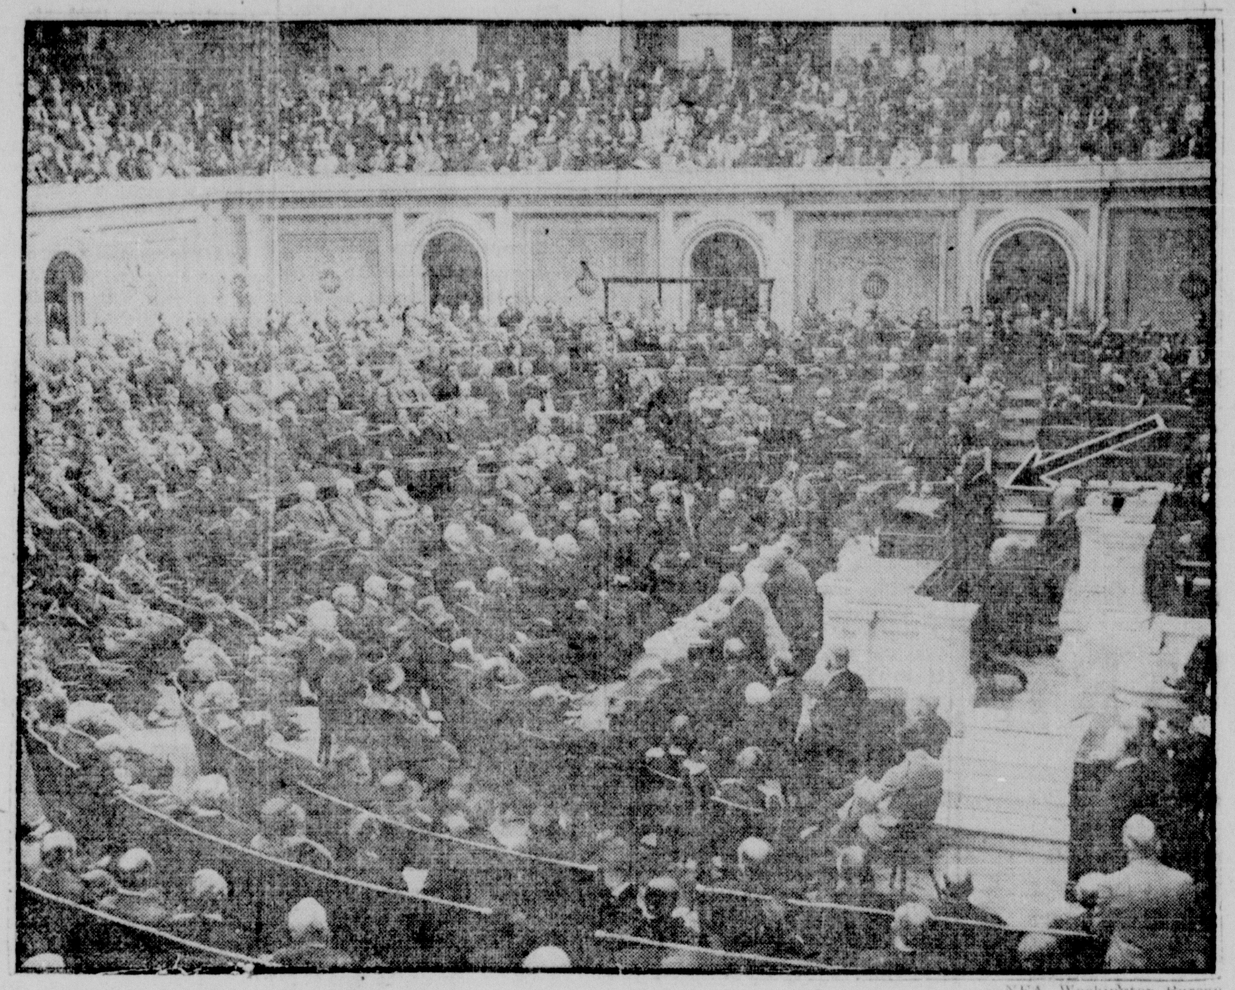
A Coolidge Speech Heard Around the World



—NEA, Washington Bureau.

This is the best picture of Congress ever taken. It was made by an NEA Service photographer while President Coolidge was delivering his Washington's Birthday speech—the speech that was heard around the world. The address was radioed all over the U. S. and relayed across the Atlantic for re-broadcasting in Europe. The photograph shows the president before the microphone, with the justices of the supreme court and cabinet members seated out in front. Chief Justice Taft, ex-president, is prominent among the justices, who wear their official robes. Many other notables easily can be recognized. The scene was the House of Representatives, where House and Senate met in joint session.

E. J. Ray, Elmo; Grant VanMeter, Tarkio; Hiram Montgomery, Quitman; Rolland Anderson and Gotfried, Anderson, Guilford; A. F. Slagle, Arch Spear, and Amos Weir, Ravenwood; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Medsker and family, Graham; and Ralph Clark, Bolckow, were Maryville visitors today.

Oren Lanning went to Omaha today to attend the Automobile Show.

How It Was Done in 1869

build a house and that we wouldn't like to move into it, but we're here and it has been worth it in comfort and pleasure," they said. "We can't enjoy what we have after we are dead," Mrs. Miller said.

Mrs. Miller Born Near Savannah.

Mrs. Miller always has been a resident of Northwest Missouri. She was born near Savannah. Two years of her early life were spent near Graham. She was born in 1849. Mrs. Miller says 58 years is a "long time to live with any man."

The Millers are planning on a celebration when they have been married sixty years.

Many "antiques" of interest are found at the couples' home. Among them is a small drop-leaf solid walnut table which former Governor and now Senator Willis of Ohio would like to have. The senator's mother and father ate their first meal alone on that table when they were married. Senator Willis spoke at chautauqua here at one time and asked from the platform if any of Mrs. Miller's family lived here, But Mrs. Miller was in Wyoming at the time and did not get to see the senator.

"Two of my girls were there, but these days people don't bother to remember their grandfather's first name. And they weren't sure so they didn't go up to speak to the Senator."

An old blue and white coverlet from Kentucky boasting a half century to its credit and an antique clock which is more than 75 years old are among a few of the antiques that the Millers own. And these articles are antiques of value because they all have been in the Miller family for at least a half century.

Nine Children Living.

Nine children are living. They are: Mrs. Ovah Griffin and Miss Frances Miller who live at home, Fred Miller, near Westphalia, Kansas; William S. Miller, east of Bolckow; Mrs. Cora A. Nelson, Santa Anna, California; Miss Elverdie Miller, teacher of art at the college at Minot, N. D.; L. Virgil Miller of Kansas, who is here today visiting his parents, John H. Miller also of Kansas City; Mrs. Mabel Miller Wilson, Santa Barbara, California. There are eleven grandchildren: Mrs. Lucy Code, Frances Catherine Griffin, teacher; Lloyd Griffin and Orville Griffin, Oklahoma; Theodore Griffin, Maryville; Reed Miller, Marjory Miller, Isah Miller and Stanley Miller, near Bolckow; Pauline and Ronert Nelson, Santa Ana.

The Millers spent the day quietly.

Another Maryville Couple Wed 55 Years

Entire Married Life of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Briggs Has Been Spent In Nodaway County.

Another Maryville couple celebrated a fifty-fifth wedding anniversary this week. They were Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Briggs, 322 South Walnut street, who were married on February 21, 1872.

The entire married life of Mr. and Mrs. Briggs has been spent in Nodaway county. The former, christened Julian Amasa Briggs, was born in a village on Point Peninsula, Jefferson county, New York, on the shores of Lake Ontario, on July 27, 1845. He lived there until the family moved to Waukegan, Ill., in the spring of 1859. In the spring of 1860 the family moved to Nodaway county and settled near what was then Howard's Mill, later to become Bridgewater, near Arkoe.

The Briggs family remained in this vicinity until 1864, when they moved to a farm between the White Cloud branch and the state road running from Maryville to the then flourishing trading point of Savannah.

In the White Cloud vicinity, the young Briggs met Miss Mary Louisa Perdew, who had been born in Pennsylvania on March 7, 1846, and had come to Nodaway county with her family in 1869, settling seven miles south of Maryville. The resulting romance culminated on February 21, 1872, in a wedding in the Perdew home—on the farm now occupied by James Danner. The young couple were married by the Reverend Mr. Crawford, a Presbyterian minister.

Mr. and Mrs. Briggs went to housekeeping on the farm of the bridegroom's father, then, three years later, rented a farm across the White Cloud. After a year there, they bought an eighty-acre farm in the Fannon neighborhood, and there they lived until 1905, when they moved to the home in Maryville in which they live now.

Mr. and Mrs. Briggs have three living children: Mrs. J. R. Currie, Beaumont, Tex.; Mrs. Glenn B. Davis, Damon, Tex.; and Miss Maebyrd Briggs, at home. A daughter-in-law, Mrs. Angie Briggs, also lives here, and there are three grandchildren, Mary Rebecca, Beth Eileen and Frances L. Briggs, all of Maryville.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Briggs are in good health. They have no especial prescription for marital happiness. "Well, we haven't had many black eyes," said Mr. Briggs, when asked if there hadn't been a misunderstanding or two in fifty-five years.

Mr. Briggs remembers 1860, the year he came to Nodaway county, as the dryest in its history. The corn crop was a complete failure, even on bottom land, he said.

Votes of Reed and Walsh Are Similar

Except for Prohibition, Record Shows Them the Same Upon All Issues Except Maternity Bill.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The voting records of Senator James A. Reed, Dem. Mo., and Senator Thomas J. Walsh, Dem. Mont., regarded by some as the two leading Senatorial possibilities for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1928, shows that during the first half of this short session of Congress they have voted similarly in most instances.

Of course Senator Reed is a wet and Senator Walsh a dry, but no prohibition issues developed during the first half of the session upon which they differed.

The record of controversial votes, as compiled by the United Press, shows, that on one important occasion only did they cast their ballots in opposite directions. This was upon the Sheppard bill to continue the Federal Maternity act for an additional experimental period of one year. Senator Reed voted against continuance and Senator Walsh in favor.

Both Senators have strict party records, the compilation shows. Both voted to drop the impeachment case against Federal Judge English, of Eastern Illinois, after the judge's retirement; for the Wadsworth immigration amendment to correct injustices which were not foreseen at the time of passage of the present law; for the Howell restrictive amendments in connection with purchase by the government of the Cape Cod canal; for the Bruce motion to consider French spoliations; against the Glass parliamentary motion to give the Pepper-McFadden banking bill the right of way; and for construction of the three new naval cruisers opposed by President Coolidge.

Senator Reed, in addition, voted for the rivers and harbors bill when Walsh was absent.

In turn, Senator Walsh voted for the rivers and harbors bill when Walsh was absent.

Consideration of the Capper Truth-in-Fabric bill.

Denial of the oath to Senator-designate Frank L. Smith, Repn., Ills. (Reed was paired for the resolution.)

Robinson resolution for Mexican arbitration.

Consideration of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill.

For Harrison tax reduction resolution and when that was defeated for Norris resolution to apply Treasury surplus for debt retirement.

Against Lenroot milk bill.

What Jerry Says

"I wandered through the village, Tom,"
And parked beneath the tree,
Down by the band stand on a bench
That could hold two or three.

And there I had a day dream,
Like castles in the air,
Built only to be treasured,
While I was sitting there.

The old courthouse had been removed,
To West Third street, I thought
Across from Dr. Herford's,
Upon that vacant lot.

And in its place a rest room,
Where tired folks could stop
Or take their fretful babies,
When they had come to shop.

Where three or four fine fountains
Sent up their silver spray,
Inviting many tourists
To stop and spend the day.

Where flowers bloomed profusely,
In many shapely plots,
It was the very finest
Of Missouri's beauty spots.

A lot of happy children
Were playing all about,
On swings and slides and teeters
With carefree laugh and shout.

Their happy shouts awoke me,
And I looked around, and lo,
There stood the courthouse as it was,
Just forty years ago.

The same old straps were on the door,
The same unplastered walls,
The same torn window shades were there,
The same smell in the halls.

The same cause for economy,
The same content, and so
'Twill be the same in fifty years,
As fifty years ago.

A CHRISTIAN GENTLEMAN

Comment on the Uniform International Sunday School Lesson for February 27, 1927. Read Galatians V.

Wm. Southern, Jr.

A very good friend of mine objected strenuously the other day to the use of the words "A Christian Gentleman" as a designation of high compliment. His objection lay in the idea that a man might be a gentleman in every sense of the word and still not be a Christian.

I agreed with him to the extent of admitting that there might properly be Mohammedan gentlemen, Confucian gentlemen, Japenese gentlemen or Agnostic gentlemen, yet I could not see no impropriety in pointing out a man as a "Christian Gentleman" if he deserves the title and lives up to it. The conversation naturally brought up several very interesting questions. Can a man be a good Christian and not be a gentleman? What is a gentleman anyhow? May one be a gentleman under some circumstances and in certain company and not in other surroundings? Can a man be a real gentleman and not do unto others as he would have others do unto him? This is the great commandment in Christianity.

The definition of gentleman in the Century dictionary reads: "A man of good breeding, courtesy and kindness; hence a man distinguished for fine sense of honor, strict regard for his obligations and consideration for the rights of others." A man may be a gentleman and not a Christian, but a man to be a Christian must be a gentleman.

It is almost impossible for us who live in the world to distinguish clearly between the material and the spiritual where the one leaves off and the other begins. Some years ago as a member of a church board I was appointed on the committee "For Spiritual Welfare." I was almost in a panic. I could understand the work on the finance committee which attended to the raising of the money to operate the church. I could understand the duty of the committee in charge of the music and was very thankful that I did not have to deal with a choir of tempermental musicians and keep the peace, I could understand the duties of the committee in charge of the church building. But where was I to begin in taking care of the spiritual welfare of several hundred people?

You can put your finger on finance, and music and a building of brick and stone but where are you going to find the soul? Science has never yet divided the human body into its component parts and segregated the soul. Science never will. We can not even prove we have a soul. No soul has ever felt its earthly habitation and identified itself to us and none ever will. We can not prove that there is such a thing as a soul by scientific methods. Following this argument we might very well expect some of our legislatures to pass a law forbiding the teaching in our tax supported schools of any theory of a soul, because it can not be proven with a pencil on paper.

We know we have a spiritual side of life and that spiritual life means a soul and that the soul must be immortal. We know that the body we are using is simply a house for the soul and that as we get old the roof leaks, the doors creak and wreck impends, but the soul simply leaves one abiding place to another.

We know these things because there is in us a reaching out after God and in God a reaching out for us. If our minds are always cluttered up with finances and music and church suppers and new buildings the soul hides in a dark corner and the spiritual committee has a very hard task. But if the church is occupied first in the welfare of its members, in the spiritual happiness of unselfishness, we are able to have a very different feeling for that church. The Christian talks the matter over with God, he finds a spiritual atmosphere in the church, he dreams dreams and sees visions and then the people with whom he is thrown look different. He does not see in them merely a figure of bones and meat and skin and muscles and nerves and hair and teeth, these become transparent and the soul shines through and illumines the old house.

There is a story that from a certain church steeple there always shows a mysterious light, an in effable brightness as if the unknown were hovering over this sacred place. This light was only visible to some people and not to others. It was like the radio sounds which you hear when you are tuned in. You have to tune in if you expect to hear the music and see the radiance of the soul.

I can understand why going to church is an irritation to some people, their radio is not tuned to the soul vibrations.

Paul in his letter to the Galatians tried to make all this clear to the new church. The old Jewish laws were minute, categrocial, ceremonial. They tried to regulate religion by law. There was no freedom of will. At this time the church was refusing to admit Gentiles to membership unless they first became Jews. He explained how the spirit, which is invisible and which can not be discovered by science, manifests itself in the lives of men. Paul said if you are looking for a spiritual man look for these qualifications: "Love, joy, peace, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness and self control." Show me a man with these attributes and I will show you a Christian gentleman.

A senator of the United States in a recent speech said that the Creator has endowed us all with the right to eat and drink what we please. He is a wet. If the senator is going to quote scripture I would refer him to the story of the first man and woman in the garden of Eden. There was prohibition in the center of the garden where there was a beautiful tree full of beautiful fruit which the man and the woman were told not to touch. But the creator did not say that the man could not eat of the fruit. He did not take away the freedom of the soul. The fruit was forbidden. The first man and woman had not the self control to keep away from the forbidden and we have all been suffering from the same trouble ever since.

We hear much in these days about the excesses of your young people. I do not think they are nearly as alarming as pictured. In fact I can remember some of my own experiences in youth. We were not tin angels in that generation. But we were taught self control. We were shown the tree with the poison fruit and told what would happen to us if we ate of it. Self control was a part of education.

That is the trouble with our young people today. They are seeking a thrill. They want something with a kick in it. I heard a girl whisper to a friend the other day "He is handsome and as wicked as he can be." There was the thrill of the forbidden, the kick of playing with a fire and escaping unhurt. But they don't always escape. Sometimes there are ugly scars left.

Blessed is the community which has within its confines a church with a soul, a church where the light shines always up to the heavens, a church where the members in their lives show the attributes listed by Paul, a church where Christian gentlemen worship and where self control and unselfishness mark the demeanor and show the abiding place of immortal souls. Such a church and such a membership will mark a Christian community.

MAKING THE COMMUNITY CHRISTIAN.

(Temperance Lesson).—Gal. 5: 13-25)

Gal. 5: 13. For ye, brethren, were called for freedom; only use not your freedom for an occasion to the flesh, but through love be servants one to another.

14. For the whole law is fulfilled in one word, even in this: Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

15. But if ye bite and devour one another, take heed that ye be not consumed one of another.

16. But I say, Walk by the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfill the lust of the flesh.

17. For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit and the Spirit against the flesh: for these are contrary the one to the other; that ye may not do the things that ye would.

18. But if ye are led by the Spirit, ye are not under the law.

19. Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are these: fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness,

20. idolatry, sorcery, enmities, strife, jealousies, wraths, factions, divisions, parties,

21. envyings, drunkenness revellings, and such like: of which I forewarn you, even as I did forewarn you, that they who practice such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God.

22. But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, longsuffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness,

23. meekness, self-control: against such there is no law.

24. And they that are of Christ Jesus have crucified the flesh with the passions and the lusts thereof.

25. If we live by the Spirit, by the Spirit let us also walk.

Interest Is Keen in "Bible Night" Service

Many Types Of Book To Be Seen At Christian Church.—Morning Subject, "Why Night Attendance Is Poor."

Much interest has been aroused by the "Bible Night" service planned for Sunday by the First Christian Church, according to the Rev. R. E. Musgrave, pastor. By Thursday night members of three of the other churches in the city and others who were members of no church had telephoned to offer to loan unique copies.

"Some are so old," said the Reverend Mr. Musgrave "the exact date cannot be determined, but at least three were well over 100 years old. Each has a rich history all its own, portions of which will be given Sunday night.

"We have one book which is not an issue of the Bible but contains much of it with expositions of the passages quoted and this book is 180 years old. One is a very large old-fashioned family Bible about five inches thick, and another is a very small edition not a great deal larger than two cakes of yeast laid together.

"We invite all who will to enter one or more copies of the Book. You may bring the copy with you and take it home after the service. Every Bible will have the very best of care.

"Just now," Mr. Musgrave continued, "when 'evolution' is a live issue and the Bible is making a strong bid to be inducted into the public school systems of the land, the time is opportune for such a service as we have planned for Sunday night. The widespread, enthusiastic interest manifest in the service is a happy surprise to us who are planning it."

A feature of the evening service will be a solo by Mrs. Fred P. Robinson, her first appearance since undergoing an operation for removal of her tonsils.

At the Sunday morning service, Mr. Musgrave will preach on "Why Sunday Night Church Attendance Has Fallen Off." "All will admit that this is a serious question," the pastor points out. "If it pertained only to certain localities, while others could show vigorous enthusiastic night audiences, crowding the churches, causes for such a situation might easily be determined, but the complaint is universal and is creating anxiety among all religious leaders, great and small. Be present Sunday morning and offer your contribution to the solution of the problem."

The Great Religions of the World

Religion of the Romans.

CHAPTER 3

The Gods of Rome.

The oldest and most original of the gods of Rome was the Sabine god Janus. He was the deity who presided over beginnings, and endings, over the act of opening and shutting. Hence the month which opened the year, January, receiving its name from this god, who also gave his name to Janua, a gate or door.

The Romans laid great stress on all beginnings; believing that the commencement of any course of conduct determined, by a sort of magical necessity, its results. Bad success in an enterprise they attributed to a wrong beginning, and the only remedy therefore was to begin anew. Ovid makes Janus say, "all depends on the beginning." When other gods were worshipped Janus was first invoked. He was the god of the year. His temple had four sides for the four seasons, and each side had three windows for the months. That his temple was open in war, but closed in peace, indicated that the character of Rome in times of war, was to attack and not to defend. She then opened her gates to send her troops forth against the enemy; while in seasons of peace she shut them in at home. This harmonized well with the haughty spirit of the republic which commanded victory by refusing to admit the possibility of defeat.

This deity is believed to have had an Indian origin, and his name to have been derived from the Sanskrit "Jan", meaning "to be born."

On the Kalends of January, which was the chief feast of Janus, it was the duty of every Roman citizen to be careful that all he thought, said, or did should be pure and true, because this day determined the character of the year. All dressed themselves in holiday garb, avoided oaths, abusive words, quarrels. They gave presents and wished each other a happy year. The presents were sweetmeats, and little coins with a Janus head. Before any important business was transacted it was customary to sacrifice to Janus.

In every important city of Etruria there were temples to the three gods, Jupiter, Juno and Minerva. The great temple at Rome had three parts,—a nave, sacred to Jupiter; and two wings or aisles, one dedicated to Juno and the other to Minerva. This temple was nearly square, being two hundred and fifty feet long and two hundred feet wide; and the wealth accumulated in it was immense. The walls and roof were of Marble, covered with gold and silver.

Jupiter was the supreme god, like Zeus of the Greeks. His name is from the Sanscrit word "Div" or "Diu" indicating the splendor of heaven or of day. He is the Father of Light. He carries the lightning. Aynthing struck by lightning became sacred and was dedicated to Jupiter.

The Juno of the Capitol was the Queen of Heaven, and in this sense was the female Jupiter. But Juno was also the goddess of womanhood, and was the friend of virgins, of matrons, and the daughter of help. Juno was the patroness of marriage, and her month of June was believed to be very favourable for wedlock. As Juno Lucina she presided over birth.

Minerva was the goddess of wisdom. Her name signifies mental action. Her statue was placed in schools. This trinity of the Capitol, Jupiter, Minerva, and Juno represented power, wisdom, and affection.

Other gods worshipped by the Romans may be classed as follows:

1. Gods representing the powers of nature—1. Sol, the sun; 2, Luna, the Moon; 3, Mater Matuta, the Dawn; 4, Tempestates, the tempest; 5, Pontus, God of the fountains; 6, Tiberinus, the river god; 7, Neptunus, god of the sea.

2. Gods of human relations—1, Vesta, the queen of the hearth and of the household fire. She represented the love of home, the respect for family life, the hatred of impurity and immodesty. She was also called Mother.

2. The Penates and Lares, supposed to be the souls of ancesters which resided in the home and guarded it. No other nation, except the Chinese, have carried the religion of the home so far. This is the tender side of the stern Roman character.

3. The Genius. Each man had his genius, from which his living power and vital force came.

3. Deities of the human soul—1, Mens, Mind, Intellect; 2, Pudicitia, Chastity; 3, Pietas, Reverence for parents, Piety; 4, Fides, Fidelity; 5, Virtus, Courage; 6, Spes, Hope; 7, Pallor or Pavor, Fear; 8, Voluptas, Pleasure.

The Romans also had numerous other gods representing rural and other occupations. There was Tellus, the earth; Saturn, the god of planting and sowing; Ops, the god of the harvest; Mars, the god of war; Silvanus, the god of the woods; Faunus, the patron of agriculture; Ceres, the goddess of the cereal grasses; Liber, the god of the vine and of wine; Flora, the goddess of flowers and blossoms; Pales, the god who protected the cattle, and others.

The list shows that the powers of earth were more objects of reverence than the heavenly bodies. The sun and stars attracted this people less than the spring and summer, seedtime and harvest. The Romans were an agricultural people. The country was more regarded than the city, and Rome was founded by country people.

CHAPTER 4

The Decay of the Roman Religion.

In Rome the freedom of the individual was sacrificed to the state. His patriotism was intense, but narrow and restrictive. In time they began to react against it in the interest of greater freedom for the individual. The Roman contrasting his own state with that of the happy, freedom loving, joyous Greek, began to feel how empty and meagre his own life was. "The Greek religion was grandly human and cosmopolitan, and Rome was not only stimulated by this influence, but was penetrated by it to its very center." The religion of Rome became a charm, a ritual, a mere outward observance of ceremonies. The gods were surrounded by myths, and superstitions. Thinking men rose up to reason the faith away. Cotta, the head of the priesthood, the Pontifex Maximus refutes the stoical opinion that there are gods who govern the universe and provide for the welfare of mankind. He believed in the gods on the authority of the tradition of his ancestors, "but," he said, "if we reason, I shall reason against their existence." He criticizes the Roman

DRAMATIC EVENTS IN BIBLE HISTORY : : By Harlowe R. Hoyt and Walter Scott

Paul's Epistle to the Galatians

Sickness delayed the coming of Paul of Tarsus to the Province of Galatia in the interior of Asia Minor. But when he came, he found a ready welcome.
Twice did he visit the province, preaching God's word and the divinity of Jesus Christ. And many were his converts.
Paul of Tarsus passed on to other fields and his converts, uncertain in their new religion, drifted back to licentiousness and heathenism.
So Paul, from his journeyings, sent back his Epistle to the Galatians, seeking to strengthen the churches in their belief.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Death strikes GARRETT FOLSOM while swiming with a party of friends at Ocean Town, N. J. At the HOTEL MAJUSACA, where they all had been guests, an inquiry is begun, after a doctor, perfunctorily examining him on the beach, pronounces him dead.

Folsom's companions had been ROGER NEVILLE, MRS. HELEN BARNABY and CARMELITA VALDON. It is established that Folsom, just before his death, had been standing next to NED BARRON, who was one of a party including his wife, MADELINE; ANGELICA FAIR and her finance, ROBIN SEARS, and his father, CROYDON SEARS.

Meanwhile, Carmelita Valdon gets the key to Folsom's room from Neville, explaining there was something there of hers. While in the room she hears a sound and notices a woman's foot protruding from under the bed.

Carmelita Valdon sneaks in Folsom's room but is surprised by a chambermaid. Then the startling announcement is made that Folsom had died by a stab wound—had been murdered.

Then the startling announcement is made that Folsom had been murdered in the ocean—stabbed to death.

ROSS, the dead man's valet, is questioned about Neville, who was Folsom's friend.

Folsom's companions had been ROGER NEVILLE, MRS. HELEN BARNABY and CARMELITA VALDON. It is established that Folsom, just before his death, had been standing next to NED BARRON, known as the Copper King.

Folsom's sister, ANASTASIA, is sent for in New York. Then the startling announcement is made that Folsom had been stabbed to death in the water.

The arrival was not unexpected, for Neville had gone in search of Anastasia with orders to bring her back with him.

"You poor dear thing!" cried Carmelita as she opened the door. "Come right in and let me take care of you."

"I'm not the kind to be taken care of," was the response, but the tone was independent rather than ungrateful. "Who is this?"

It was a strange thing, but the speeches of Anastasia Folsom, though often rude of words, were accompanied by a smile of good nature that seemed to take away their sting. Her glance at the Duchess was one of admiration, though her question was brusque.

"This is my dear friend, Mrs. Barnaby," Carmelita introduced. "Usually called the Duchess, because of her—"

"Her noble air and bearing," interrupted Miss Folsom, holding out her hand. "I like you, Duchess, you're all right."

"Goody!" and Helen Barnaby smiled one of her wide, vapid smiles. "It's so nice to be liked."

"Well, that's that," and Miss Folsom turned from the Duchess as if entirely through with her. "Now, Carmelita Valdon, tell me all there is to tell about Garrett's death. Roger, you can speak when I speak to you, but I want Carmy to tell the story."

She pulled off her hat and flung it across the room, where Paxton picked it up and poked it back into shape.

"Where were you at the time of his death?"

"In Mr. Folsom's rooms, waiting for his return."

"Then you can't be suspected! So you can help me in my investigations. I will keep you on, for the present, Ross. You will be useful here and after we go back home. You may, go, now, and hold yourself at my orders."

"Yes, Miss Folsom," and Ross departed.

"I'm glad to have him," she said, "he is dependable and capable in every way. Now tell me more. Who was nearest my brother when he—when he fell over?"

"Our own crowd," Neville told her, "and several strangers."

"Your own crowd being?"

"These two ladies and myself," he said.

"Well, I don't suspect any of you," but the hawk-like eyes rested sternly on them all in turn. "Who were the strangers? Do you know?"

"Some of them. Next to Garrett there stood a man named Barron, a chap from New York."

"Barron? Know anything about him?"

"Nothing at all. It seems Garry talked to him, just casually you know, as lots of people do, in the ocean. But he wasn't at all responsive, and gave Garry rather the cold shoulder."

"Then, if he was an utter stranger, we can scarcely suspect him."

"No, but Anastasia, you can't suspect anybody yet. It's all in the hands of the police—"

"Indeed it isn't! It's in my hands. I am the one who will find out my brother's murdered and bring him to justice. Police, bah! Do they ever accomplish anything?"

"Of course they do," said Neville, with spirit. "You mustn't talk like that—"

"Don't you tell me how I must or mustn't talk! I talk as I choose!"

"Yes, yes, dearie, so you shall," and Mrs. Valdron put an arm round the excited woman. "Do hush, Roger. You only make matters worse when you talk. Now, Anastasia, dear, I'm going to put Roger out and I'm going to give you a kimono and slippers and let you relax a little. Then you must get to bed—"

Anastasia Folsom gave her a comical look and then burst into a short laugh.

"I thought you knew me better!" she said. "I say, Duchess," she turned to Mrs. Barnaby, "do I look like a slippers and kimono person? Do I, now?"

And certainly the strong, forceful personality had in it no hint of the type of woman who loves to relax in that way.

"Besides," Miss Folsom went on, more quietly now, "the man from the police place is coming tonight!"

"Here?" cried the Duchess. "Up here?" She whipped out her canity case and dabbed vigorously at her powder and rouge.

"Up here or anywhere," said Anastasia, carelessly. "I don't care where, so long as I see him. There he is now, likely."

For a swift rap on the door seemed to indicate an important caller.

It was Jepson, ushered up by Tuttle, and introduced by him to the group.

"I'm glad to see you, Mr. Jepson," and Miss Folsom's welcome was quite evidently sincere if not cordial. "You're the man to whom I look for help in finding the murderer of my brother."

"I certainly hope to do that, Miss Folsom."

"I don't expect you to do it. I expect to do it myself. I said I look to you for help."

(To Be Continued.)

A queer trait of Garrett Folsom's is revealed in the next chapter when a discovery is made in his room.

"Who did it?" she repeated. "Roger, who murdered my brother?"

ROSS, his valet, is questioned, as are Barron and his wife, but no light is shed on the mystery.

Police take command of the situation until the arrival of Anastasia. They learn that Folsom and Neville had been business associates.

Anastasia arrives and encounters Neville, who had been her brother's associate in business.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER II

"Miss Folsom," Neville cried. "Why are you here? Haven't you got a room yet? Come, you can go to Mrs. Valdon's apartments. You mustn't stay here—"

"Why not? Why does everybody want me to hide? I am here to investigate my brother's death. And remember, Roger Neville, I know as yet none of the details. I had only the telegram that Garrett was dead. Then I come here and I find his rooms are in the charge of the police! I sent for Ross, but before I could ask him about it all you came. I had no wish to ask the hotel people, so perhaps you will tell me the facts."

"Of course, dear Miss Folsom, but not here, I beg of you! See," he spoke low, "see, many are already clustering around us. They pretend to be talking among themselves, but you can see they are greedily listening."

Anastasia Folsom raised her head high and gave the curious onlookers a stare.

"You are right, Roger," she said. "I was a fool to stay here as long as I have. Let Paxton and Ross bring my things and take me anywhere, anywhere that we can talk."

Relieved at her docility, Neville led her quickly through the throngs to the elevator and took her to the suite occupied by Mrs. Valdon and Mrs. Barnaby.

"And you stay, too, Ross," Miss Folsom went on, as she held out her hand to Paxton and received a cigaret. "Stay, at any rate, until I hear the main facts."

"Yes, ma'am," Ross said, and stood at attention.

Then Mrs. Valdon gave a straightforward and concise account of the death of Garrett Folsom. She told all there was to tell of his bath in the ocean with them, of his sudden sinking beneath the waves, of his being carried to shore by two of the life guards, accompanied or assisted by several men who chanced to be near.

She told how they had all assumed that death was due to natural causes, until informed by Doctor Manning that it was not, but was the result of a murderous attack.

"Who did it?" cried Miss Anastasia at this point.

But her question received no answer.

"Who did it?" she repeated. "Roger, who murdered my brother?"

A quick glances passed from one to another of her hearers, saying as plainly as words could do that she was hysterical and must be calmed.

Neville rose and sat beside her, taking her hand and gently soothing her.

"That we don't know, my dear. That we have yet to find out—"

"We certainly have!" Garrett was my brother! The only human being on the face of the earth I cared for. I shall devote my life to finding the fiend who killed him and avenging his death. Ross, who killed him?"

She turned to the valet and glared at him, with the glittering eyes of a mad woman.

"I don't know, Miss Folsom," the man replied, his voice sad but with the respectful tone of a servant.

Great Religions of the World

pantheon, and ridicules the idea of such gods as "Love, Deceit, Fear, Labor, Envy, Old Age, Death, Darkness, Misery, Lamantation, Favor, Fraud, and so on." He shows that there are many gods of the same name. He then denies providence by showing that the wicked succeed and the good are unfortunate. This was Cicero's contribution to theology, and Cicero was the most religious man of his period.

In Cicero's fourth Cataline Oration, Cato commends Caesar for his opinion against putting the conspirators to death; for death, says he, "is the end of all suffering." The poem of Lucretius, "De Rerum Natura," declares faith in the gods to have been the curse of the human race, and immortality to be a silly delusion. He denies the gods, providence, the human soul, and any moral purpose in the universe.

The religion of Rome was declining, and not even great philosophers like Seneca, Epictetus, and Aurelius Antonius could stop the decay.

It was Deneca who made the noble assertion that, "A sacred spirit sits in every heart, and treats us as we treat it." He opposed idolity and animal sacrifices. God is spirit, and all souls are part of the same spirit. Reason is the bond that unites God and other souls, and so God dwells in all souls. The religion of Rome decayed because Rome lost her old simplicity and purity. Even the tombs of the dead bore the inscription, "Rea[illegible] enjoy thy life; for, after death, there is neither laughter, nor play, nor any kind of enjoyment." So ended the Roman religion; in superstition among the ignorant, in unbelief among the wise. It was time that something came to renew hope. This was the gift which the Gospel brought to the Romans—hope for time, and hope beyond time. This was Paul's prayer for the Romans: "Now the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope, through the power of the Holy Ghost." A remarkable fact, that a Jewish writer should exhort Romans to hope and courage.

CHAPTER 5

Relation of Roman Religion to Christianity.

The idea of Rome is law, that of Christanity is love. Roman worships was a formula that bound the soul in slavery. Christianity was a worship of the spirit that brought freedom to man. Christianity came to the Roman world not as a new theory, but as a new life. Christianity accept Roman law, but it gave Roman jurisprudence a new lease on life.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—News of the veto of the McNary-Haugen bill by the President suddenly turned a dull and weak market into one of strength and bullishness, wheat prices advancing 1½ cents within three minutes after the news came out. There was profit taking late in the session, however, and closing prices were but fractionally higher than yesterday. Receipts were eleven cars. The cash market was unchanged.

Corn advanced nearly 2 cents, with leading local operators and commission houses buying heavily. There was a small recession late, but closing prices were sharply higher. The cash market was unchanged to ½ cent higher. Receipts were 394 cars.

Oats followed other grains and held most of the sharp advance. Receipts were 55 cars. The cash market was steady.

Provisions held steady.

BASEBALL NOW IN THE OFFING

A MARYVILLE NINE IS IN PROSPECT.

NAME LEADERS SUNDAY

Meeting To Be Held 7:30 P. M. In Veterans' Association Rooms To Discuss A Team.

With advent of the National and American League teams to southern training camps, talk of a Maryville amateur baseball team already has been heard.

Not mere talk either—but preliminary action has been taken for a 1927 nine to represent Maryville. Several local men, whose interest in baseball is more than passive, have called a meeting for 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening at the Veterans' Association rooms to name leaders of a prospective Maryville team.

Any who are in any way interested in the sport are urged to be present to present their views as to a local baseball aggregation.

If opinion appears favorable for a team, a manager and secretary-treasurer will be named to take active steps toward the organization of a team.

Sentiment seems to be that there is material here to form an amateur team on a par with any of the surrounding towns. This year the formation of a team is being made early, which in previous seasons has dragged almost until the opening of the season.

A good start may have some impression on the baseball fans here, of whom there are many, but who in late years have been lagged in supporting a Maryville nine. There are many towns in this vicinity, including Bedford, Shenandoah, Villisca, Hopkins, Tarkio, Gentry and others, who always put good amateur teams in the field each year who always have been willing to schedule games with Maryville.

Parnell Takes Two Games From Sheridan

Parnell Boys Win 14 to 7 While Girls Score a 24 to 7 Victory Last Night.

Parnell High School boys and girls last night defeated the Sheridan boys and girls at Sheridan, 14 to 8 and 24 to 7.

Next Thursday Parnell will play the Ravenwood teams at Parnell, which will be the last scheduled games before the county tournament, March 5, at Elmo. Harry Nelson, coach at Parnell, said today he would enter the Parnell teams in both the county tournament, and the Northwest Missouri tournament, March 11 and 12.

The Parnell girls team last night ran up a 5 to 0 lead early in the game, but played their best in the last half. The Parnell boys were slow in getting started, and Sheridan counted four points before the Nelson team could score. However, in the last half the Parnell boys found their stride and nearly doubled the score.

IT'S THE OLD ARMY GAME

What a cigarette Men, what a cigarette!

IF YOU'VE never rolled one with Prince Albert, you have no idea how good a home-rolled cigarette can be. Sure as gun's iron, P. A. makes the niftiest smoke you ever met in the home-rolled line. And the one, big, outstanding reason is that it is better tobacco!

Prince Albert is crimp-cut. It stays put in the paper as you roll it . . . doesn't float away on the first little breeze. But that's a detail. The big thrill is the taste of a cigarette made with P. A. It is cool and sweet. It is mild and mellow. Every puff is a joy.

The instant you open the tidy red tin and get a whiff of P. A., you know you are in for some grand cigarette-sessions. The breath of hill-top air is in it, with sunshine smiling through. You'll roll 'em and smoke 'em from morning to midnight, and relish every one.

Do you sometimes smoke a pipe? Experienced jimmy-pipers will tell you that no other tobacco is like P. A. for pipes. It doesn't bite the tongue or parch the throat, no matter how hard you hit it up. If you want to get the most out of a pipe, put P. A. in it!

P. A. is sold everywhere. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.
